

Tenets of Tae Kwon Do

Courtesy: To be thoughtful and considerate of others. Tae kwon do students and instructors should be polite, and show consideration for others.

Integrity: To be honest and good. Tae kwon do practitioners should live by a code of moral values and principles

Perseverance: To never give up in the pursuit of one's goals. Students should welcome challenges, because challenges cause us to grow and improve.

Self-Control: To have control of your body and mind. A Tae kwon do student should practice controlling his actions and reactions.

Indomitable Spirit: To have courage in the face of adversity. A Tae kwon do student should never be dominated by, or have his spirit broken by another.
